POTASH BEARING MINERAL FOUND IN QUANTITIES IN SOUTHERN NEVADA

Alunite is a mineral with a theoretical content of 11.4 per cent potash and 37 per cent alumina. While the mineral is seldom found pure in nature, its deposits are of importance as a possible source of both potash and alumina, and interest therefore attaches to several of the recent discoveries of this mineral by geologists of the United States geological survey.

A recent investigation of the Nogales region in southern Arizona, by F. C. Schrader of the survey, revealed a deposit of alunite. Analysis of rock samples collected from the Evening Star copper prospect by Mr.
Schrader showed large percentages of alumina and potash, and while the discovery of the alunite was only incidental to the investigation of the copper deposits, it has served to suggest that other alunite deposits may be found in this formation, which occupies an area of many square miles.

Mr. Schrader states that the porphyry belt in which the alunite was found "would commend itself for prospecting in case a practical process is developed for the reduction of alunite to soluble potash salts, and in the light of the fact that a study of the alunite deposits near Marysville, Utah, and in other parts
